India growth key for upside in Cipla stock

Success of new launches in the US will drive gains over medium term

RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 6 August

Cipla outperformed Street expectations in the June quarter (Q1FY22), posting its highest-ever quarterly revenues. Its operating performance too was better than Street expectations, aided by Covid-19 portfolio and one-off gains in the active pharmaceutical ingredient business.

The Cipla management believes that the sales momentum will continue in the current financial year with the overall domestic pharma market (excluding Covid sales) expected to grow at 10-12 per cent. The company aims to outperform its domestic peers in FY22.

Despite a strong operating performance and outlook, the stock declined 3.7 per cent on Friday. While most brokerages have raised their earnings estimates, the Street will keep an eye on growth trajectory and margin performance, given that the quarter saw some one-time gains. Say Anmol Ganjoo and Shashank Krishnakumar of JM Financial, "Normalised growth in the core domestic business and the sustainability of the elevated margin levels (22-23 per cent in FY22 based on management guidance) will remain key near-term monitorables."

The sales trend in the Indian market, which accounts for just under half of revenues, will be a key trigger for the stock. The India business segment registered a growth of 69 per cent year-on-year (50 per cent sequential) on the back of lower base and contribution from the Covid portfolio. Adjusted for Covid contribution, sales growth was 47 per cent.

The company highlighted that the outperformance vis-a-vis peers comes on the back of strong volume growth in core therapies as well as traction from new product launches. While the contribution of Covid-19 portfolio to overall sales stood at high single digits, the Street will await the impact once the Covid-related sales wear off like in June.

New launches and traction in the base business is expected to drive the US business, which is the second largest geography by sales for the company. It posted a 2 per cent YoY growth with the performance a tad below expectations. Its US sales have been steady at $141 million over the last four quarters.

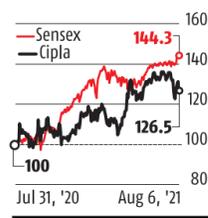

Most analysts expect some traction in the second half of the current year, with larger gains coming from FY23. Says Alankar Garude of Macquarie Research, "While Cipla has not disclosed its upcoming complex launches in FY22, we do not anticipate a material improvement in US sales over the next two-three quarters, barring continued benefit from scale-up of inhalers Albuterol and Brovana. The company continues to highlight FY23 as a key year for US launches with generic versions of inhalers Advair, Abroxane and one peptide launch, which could drive material shift in US sales trajectory in FY23."

Margin trajectory is another key factor for the stock. Aided by strong gross margins and cost-control measures, the company expanded its margins by over 30 basis points YoY to 24.5 per cent. It indicated that margins adjusted for the Covid portfolio is expected to be in the 22-23 per cent range or broadly in line with FY21 levels.

The stock has underperformed the BSE Healthcare over the last six months as well as one year, with returns of 7.5 per cent and 24.5 per cent. While valuations at 24 times one-year forward earnings estimates are lower than historical averages, for the rerating to continue, Cipla has to successfully execute its growth strategies in the US, where it has a robust generics pipeline, as well as the branded businesses in India and South Africa, say analysts at Emkay Research.

TAKING A HIT

US-focused funds can deliver despite long bull run

Invest with at least a seven-year horizon, via SIP, and limit exposure to 15%

SARBAJEET K SEN

Equity markets both in India and the United States (US) are on a roll. While in India the BSE Sensex and the Nifty50 crossed 54,000 and 16,000 points, respectively, for the first time this week, in the US the S&P 500 closed at a record high of 4,222, while the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) crossed 35,000 for the first time.

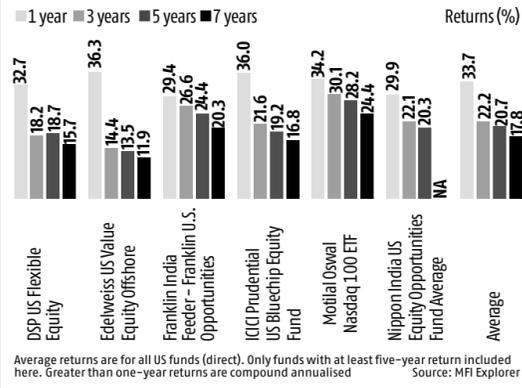

US-focused funds have performed very well over the past several years (see table): Average returns over the past seven years stand at 17.8 per cent annualised. In June 2016, there were only six of these funds with asset under management (AUM) of ₹1,157.9 crore. By June 2021, their count had swollen to 12 with AUM of ₹19,086.7 crore. IDFC US Equity Fund-of-Fund (FoF) is the latest fund to be launched in this space. Its ongoing new fund offer closes on August 12.

Diversification benefit

The key reason for investing in a US fund should be geographical diversification. "Different markets have different return drivers and are at different stages of growth. US-focused funds offer good diversification beyond the domestic equity market," says Bhavana Acharya, co-founder, PrimeInvestor.in.

While the trend towards international diversification has begun in India, there is still a long way to go. According to

STELLAR PERFORMANCE

Average returns are for all US funds (direct). Only funds with at least five-year return included here. Greater than one-year returns are compound annualised. Source: MFI Explorer

Vishal Kapoor, chief executive officer (CEO), IDFC Asset Management Company (AMC). "International diversification by Indian investors through funds is under 2 per cent of total equity fund investments."

Also, an Indian investor gets exposure to emerging themes such as artificial intelligence, machine learning, robotics, and pharmaceutical research (for new molecules) that are not available in India.

Low correlation

US and Indian equities also have low correlation. "Data on correlation shows that US and Indian equities have moved differently across several periods, thereby offering effective diversification and adding greater stability to a portfolio consisting of investments in both these geographies," says Kapoor.

Indian investors also benefit from currency movements. "Low correlation between the two markets alongside rupee depreciation against the dollar can help Indian investors reap rich returns," says Sridharan, founder, Wealth Ladder Direct.

Can US performance continue?

After correcting in March 2020, US equities have also bounced back. Valuations are not cheap. This has given rise to doubts over whether this market can continue to perform. "Prima facie, valuations in the US do look high. However, when we look at the price-to-earnings (P/E) ratio and earnings of the S&P 500, we notice that the top 10 stocks have significantly driven up overall valuation levels. The remaining 490 stocks are more reasonably valued and, therefore, offer long-term potential," says Kapoor.

This market could continue to perform. "There are stocks with huge growth potential within the broader market that have not participated in the rally yet," adds Sridharan.

What should you do?

Invest in a US fund for the long haul. "Investors must invest for at least five-seven years," says Acharya. Take the systematic investment plan (SIP) route to average out acquisition cost. Also, do not get carried away by the current high returns and have more modest expectations from the future. "Limit your allocation to 15 per cent of your equity portfolio," adds Acharya.

Investors not keen on betting on an actively managed fund may invest in a US-focused exchange-traded fund or index fund. Passive funds based on both the Nasdaq 100 and S&P 500 are available.

Different themes

Developed markets like the US offer Indian investors the opportunity to invest in global businesses like Amazon, Google, Adobe, and Facebook that benefit from global growth. If you invest in a portfolio of US equities, for instance, the JP Morgan US Growth Fund that IDFC's fund-of-fund will invest in, nearly 41 per cent of the revenue of these companies come from non-US markets.

Commodity markets worry as delta outbreak rattles China

The tone in global commodity markets in the coming days will be set in large part by China's battle to tame its fast-spreading delta coronavirus outbreak, with much at stake for oil to agriculture markets as the world's top raw materials buyer struggles to get the flare-up under control. Fears over the more infectious variant helped drive US crude below $70 a barrel this week, as investors track efforts by Beijing, and other Asian governments, to halt serious outbreaks. In China, sweeping lockdowns, traffic curbs, and other restrictions are already hitting fuel consumption.

A triptych of key reports on crude oil's outlook, including one from OPEC, will offer more grist on demand risks. Elsewhere, watch gas markets after a 1,000 per cent price-surge. And on the earnings front, the diary includes numbers from No.2 gold miner Barrick Gold Corp, a swathe of European power utilities including Germany's RWE AG, plus meat giants Tyson Foods Inc. and Brazil's JBS SA. Delta Blues
